

Hazelia Field at Luscher Farm

Awarded the Oregon Recreation & Parks Association's 2008 Design Award for Outstanding New Park Project.

Hazelia Field at Luscher Farm is the City of Lake Oswego's newest community park. It is a 12 acre site containing the first artificial turf athletic field on city-owned property, 1.5 acre wetland, two dog parks, playground, restroom facility, parking lot, and trail access to the recently constructed Stafford Basin Trail.

The park is the first development on city park property in the area know as the Stafford Basin. Since 1990, the City has acquired over 125 acres in the Stafford Basin for open space and parks. The construction of Hazelia field at Luscher Farm was long anticipated by the community and dedicated in April 2008
